I. TKRCET Student Grievance Redressal Policy

The TKR College of Engineering and Technology (TKRCET) is committed to providing a secure and dynamic environment for learning. The college encourages students to express themselves freely and without fear, while also protecting them from all forms of exploitation. To uphold this commitment, TKRCET is vigilant in ensuring freedom of expression regardless of gender, while enforcing strict rules and regulations to maintain decorum within the campus. The Disciplinary Committee is responsible for upholding these rules, and emphasizes the importance of campus discipline. Additionally, TKRCET has established a three-level mechanism for addressing student grievances.

Grievance transmission Procedure

1. Open door policy: Complaints can be made by face-to-face approach or by telephone to the committee.
2. Grievance and Redressal committee boxes: Drop the Complaints and Redress Committee boxes in the department.
3. Email: Grievances can be sent to the email id of the Grievance and Redressal committee.

Complaints submitted anonymously will not be considered.

Grievance Redressal Procedure

Students

Functional:

1. When a student has a complaint, they should first speak with head of the Department either verbally or in writing. Head of the Department is expected to resolve the issue or address it within two days.
2. If the students complaint is not resolved or addressed within two days, and they remain dissatisfied, they may seek assistance from the GRC.
3. If the student's complaint remains unresolved or unaddressed by the GRC after seven days, they may escalate the issue by approaching the Ombudsman.

Non-Functional:

1. When a student has a complaint, they should first speak with the convener of the concerned committee either verbally or in writing. The convener is expected to resolve the issue or address it within two days.
2. If the student's complaint remains unresolved or unaddressed within two days, they may seek assistance from the GRC.
3. If the student's complaint remains unresolved or unaddressed by the GRC after 7 days, they may escalate the issue by approaching the Ombudsman.

Staff

Functional:

1. When a staff member has a complaint, they should first speak with the Head of the Department either verbally or in writing. The Head of the Department is expected to resolve the issue or address it within 2 days.
2. If the staff member is not satisfied or his/her complaint was not addressed within 2 days, He/she can approach the GRC.
3. If the staff member is not satisfied or his/her complaint was not addressed within 7 days by GRC, He/she can approach the Ombudsman.

Non-Functional:

1. A staff member should initially report their grievance either orally or in writing to the relevant committee convener. The convener is responsible for resolving the issue within two days.
2. If the staff member is not content with the outcome or their complaint remains unresolved within the specified timeframe, they may escalate the matter to the GRC.
3. If the staff member is still dissatisfied with the resolution provided by the GRC within seven days, they may seek the assistance of the Ombudsman.

Role of Committee Members

- The committee member is expected to make a fair and impartial decision, taking into account only the evidence presented before them.
- To ensure a fair and impartial decision, no committee member should have a conflict of interest.
- There should be no ex parte communications and decisions should only be made based on the evidence presented during the hearing.
- If any member of the committee has a potential conflict of interest, they should disclose it during the meeting.

Conflicts of interest

A conflict of interest arises when an individual has a connection to one of the parties involved or possesses knowledge of the dispute that may impede their ability to make a decision based solely on the evidence presented at a hearing, free from personal interests or other influences. Committee members and the chairperson or president are expected to make impartial decisions, unaffected by personal interests, familiarity with the parties or witnesses, or other related circumstances. In the event that a member has a personal stake in the dispute, meaning that they stand to gain or lose something from the committee's decision, they should immediately step down from their position on the committee. Similarly, if a member has any prior knowledge or personal relationships that could sway their decision, they should also recuse themselves. The critical question is whether the member can render an impartial judgment, irrespective of their knowledge or association with the parties. The chairperson may also request a member to withdraw from the proceedings if a conflict of interest is identified.

UNILATERAL DISCUSSION:

The committee is primarily responsible for making factual determinations and resolving the grievance solely based on the evidence presented during the hearing. Committee members are not permitted to gather their own evidence or engage in any communication with any party outside of the hearing regarding the grievance. The hearing should take place in a meeting where both parties have the opportunity to be present, or through correspondence between the committee and any party, which is typically managed by the chairperson with copies to all parties. If the committee believes that there is a witness who can provide relevant information regarding the grievance, the chairperson may propose to the parties that one or both parties call the witness to testify during the hearing in the presence of the parties or arrange for the testimony.
